Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 16 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy and some light rain, turning wet again Thursday.

Today:
Damp and cloudy to start Wednesday, with the best of any blue skies in the southeast, but the odd sunny spell throughout. Light rain confined mostly to the north and over the Pennines. Maximum temperature 23 deg C (73 deg F).

Tonight:
Turning dry into the late evening, but with further showers moving in from the south overnight. These showers are likely to be heavy and possibly thundery, especially in the southeast. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Thursday:
A wet morning, with showers moving northwards across the region, heaviest in the south and possibly thundery. Turning largely dry into the afternoon, with clear skies developing from the northwest. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Dry with clear and sunny spells on Friday. A mixture of sunny spells and variable cloud with showers on Saturday. Heavy and possibly thundery showers Sunday. Temperatures around normal throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.